The Sense of a Sign

Things only make sense when they tell us something else. This is taught to us by semiotics, the study of signs and the way they express meaning. It's a vast and fascinating field that studies every phenomenon as a sign, from the moment of its inception in a community, to its members' more or less vast individual interpretations. Invented by men and expressed through rules, our entire life seems to revolve around them. They can even be traced among social phenomenon, dressing customs, fashion, self-decoration, or social behaviors in different human contexts. In certain cases, these are acts of explicit communication, in others, tied to social norms. Tattoos certainly make their entrances as examples. Meaningful relationships define a system which is a prerequisite to initiate the communication process. We, who hold in our hands this new Tattoo Collection, share a well-defined system of which we understand the rules, and recognize the signs that for each of us have a meaning capable of activating communication. They are in other words images that permit us all to imagine from a common base, which redirect us and come to life in many different ways. Take a look at our gallery: 24 hours of new themes that are without a doubt fertile material for scholars of semiotics. Our tattoos comprise a vast reservoir of signs to study, interpret, and observe. Try to leaf through these pages: there are crosses, hearts, owls, motors, orchids and lilies, roses, pinups, mermaids, samurai, sports, swords, sharks, skulls, tigers, birds, sailing vessels, zombies, lettering, fantastical and geometric subjects, symbols of fortune, of time, traditionals, and tribal. We present our selection of artworks thematically. Each theme, rich with meanings to decipher, is a world in itself. Bon voyage.
